Where Rain Is Never Needed

Colorado Shows Up Well as Agricultural Country Under In piration of Irrigation-John L. Papes, Editor Mulvane News, takes a Jaunt Over the New Irrigation Proposition and Believes It Has a Great Outcome-A Very Interesting Trip Through a Coming Country.

Such an enterprise is now well under way, with every promise of early completion, near the city of Pueblo, in the state of Colorado, It is the enterprise of the Pueblo-Rocky Ford Land Co., of Topeka, Kan., the president of the company being C. L. Tallmadge, and the vice president, B. H. Tallmadge, both experienced land men.

In order that we might have direct evidence on this immense proposition.

foot of water over 14,000 acres, it is claimed that twelve inches of water if placed at the proper time is all the ad-ditional moisture needed to grow crops in this part of Colorado. This lake will empty its waters into Huerfano river at the will of the company, be carried down the river to the company's ditch and he diverted there and spread through main canal and laterals to ev-ery tract of land owned or sold by the n basin called Bradford's lake, where a body of water three miles across and twelve miles around will be held in storage for summer use. This lake will be filled by diverting the water from the Huerfano river through an immense canal, into the lake, and then through a second canal it may be turned back into the river at the will of the company, and put to the use of irrigation at such time as it is most needed. This lake has a capacity of $2,000 acre feet. The Huerfano is a stream with a bed similar to that of the Ninnescah, and carries the water of a territory cover-ing 1,200 square miles where the annual rainfall in 22 inches. At this season of the year the river has but little water in it and was easily forded by the au-tomobiles, but it shows signs of being powerful stream in the spring and

Besides these two reservoirs the company has four others, with a total ca-pacity of about 250,000 acre feet, or two and one-half times as much as is need-ed for the land in question. We were taken to where the great diversion dam of steel and concrete is being built back its four millions it must furnish across the Huerfano by a large force of men. The route also took us past the great diversion ditch upon which iwo monstrous steam shovels are eating their way through the earth in strenuous effort to get together in the next four weeks. They are now about a mile apart, and the ditch they are making is the second largest irrigation ditch in the whole country.

From the reservoirs we were driven to the little town of Huerfano, where we deserted the automobiles, taking a special train back to Pueblo and through to Canon City, the home of good coal, and they have also one of the most marvelous irrigated sections

In order tor it to get back its four millions it must furnish rant for water, and have farmers on the land who will make it out of the soil. To change a vast and comparatively barren waste, where nothing but an occasional cactus bush or ant heap now breaks the monotony of arid plain, and convert it into a veritable garden where flowers, fruit and waving grain shall make the hearts of thousands of husbandmen rejoice is an enterprise which may well arouse the enthusiasm in its promoters.

Such an enterprise is now well under way, with every promise of early compared to the control of two or three miles will show you the houses almost as close together way, with every promise of early compared to the control of two or three miles will show you the houses almost as close together as in Mulvane, and all well improved.

Returning to Pueblo for a good night's sieep and breakfast, the party was ready at 8 o'clock Friday for another stories told him of the big things accomplished on irrigated lands seem too big to believe.

Leaving Mulvane Wednesday afternoon, we arrived in Pueblo before daylight Thursday morning, and after a substantial breakfast, were ready by 7:30 to join the large company of landscekers for the sixty-mile trip by automobile to the reservoirs where the waters are to be stored to irrigate the 100,000 acres of land owned by this company. There were sixteen automobile loads in the party, and as we whirled pany. There were sixteen automobile loads in the party, and as we whirled away toward the south the great mountains to our right, which seemed but alle of their twenty away, presented an ever-changing view. Far away to the south the Spanish peaks, their snow-capped heads showing the white of old age, stood like sentinels on guard of some rich possession. On went the gas wagons at twenty miles an hour, up a grade, then down a slope into some little valley where the luxuriant alfaifs in field and stack toid eloquent stories of what a little water a little soil and with Pueblo as one point, and the othin field and stack told eloquent stories of what a little water. a little soil and some Colorado sunshine would do. Then up a little higher grade until the footbills begun to show quite plainly their proximity, when we came to a good sized lake, across "" mouth of which a dam was being built by a large force of men. This is known as reservoir No. and the engineers give it a capacity of 14,000 acre feet—that is, of the equal foot of water over 14,000 acres, it is claimed that twelve inches of water is the proposition. There is a lotel building almost completed, and there will be other buildings erected as there will be other buildings erected as wheeling today to attend the spring and it can not help making a good town, with a farmer on every ten and twenty acres adolaing.
